

Silves

Algarve, Portugal

Par 70, 5615 metres

Surrounded by Algarve fruit orchards and small farms, this course has been designed to test a golfer's accuracy and a technical knowledge of the correct club is vital. Do not be disillusioned by the tranquil setting at Silves. With views over mountains and olive groves, this serene course demands accuracy. The first tee provides the first challenge with two water hazards lining the fairway. Drive long and straight and the approach shot will be easy. A course for attacking play, watch out for the bunkers if you are a big hitter, they could easily catch you out!

Your precision will be tested immediately from the 1st tee where two water hazards come into sight, one on either side of the fairway. This is certainly the shape of things to come when your choice of club and directional hitting skills will determine the outcome on your scorecard. This is definitely a course which favours attacking play and will suit golfers at all levels of ability.
