

Campo de Golf de Maspalomas

Gran Canaria, Canaries

Par 73, 6112 metres

This entire course is bordered by dunes as it is very close to the famous beach at Maspalomas and is set amongst large bunkers of fine golden sand. Founded in 1968 the course is a fairly popular choice today, the sea provides a slight welcome breeze which makes playing the course a delight at any time of year and the average temperature in the summer doesn't climb above 24 degrees.

Maspalomas golf course starts with a fairly gentle par 4 measuring 367m and at stroke index 13 there is a real chance of getting your round off to a great start with a par or even a birdie. Beware though because the tough stroke index 3 par 4 second will test your skills. The 10th hole is an interesting par 3 that on inspection of the card appears fairly benign at 140m, however, you may feel different when you arrive at the tee. Your tee shot will have to carry an expanse of water and with trees protecting the left and right there is little room for error.

Maspalomas golf club has hosted two PGA tour events in 1995 and 1997, the events were won by Jarmo Sandelin and Spain's very own José María Olazábal respectively.
